New Children's Book Invites Families to Experience Real Art Together

San Francisco, California — February 17, 2026 — Lines in Art is a new picture book launching on Kickstarter that introduces young children to real masterpieces through close looking and open-ended conversation. Designed for ages 3–8, the book invites families to slow down, notice details, and wonder together rather than focus on facts or explanations.

The book features carefully curated reproductions by artists such as Picasso, Mondrian, Van Gogh, and Miró.

The project was created by two women: Cecilia, an art historian and mother of three from Italy, and Kristin, a former elementary school teacher. Combining art history and classroom experience, they developed a format that supports how children naturally think, communicate, and build confidence through dialogue.

The Kickstarter launches March 12, 2026. Visit www.linesinart.com to access the campaign.
